Enabling land use transition to net zero: levers for change

Online Stakeholder Workshop

This event builds on previous exploratory stakeholder workshops across the four nations on the topic of enabling on the ground transition in land use to net zero. It aims to:

- Present a synthesis of ‘what works’ using the levers framework
- Collect stakeholder responses to refine and develop this framework further
- Discuss the implications of these findings for future public and private strategies and policies

The workshop is intended for hub and wider stakeholders from across the four nations and different land use sectors (private and public), who are engaged in land management, policy and decision making, research, advice and support.
